Dear Dr. Ghosh:

I am sorry to inform you that your manuscript

Partitioned Maximum Margin Criterion based Transformation for Band Extraction of Hyperspectral Images has been carefully reviewed by the J-STARS Editorial Review Board and has not been recommended for publication.
JSTARS-2014-00714

Below are summary comments from the Editorial Review Board for your information. Any attached files that may be referenced with these comments can be accessed in a copy of this decision letter located in your Author Center on ScholarOne Manuscripts.

I recommend shortening the paper and resubmitting to the IEEE Geoscience and Remote Sensing Letters (GRSL), focusing on the actual contribution.

Thank you for submitting your manuscript to J-STARS.

Sincerely,

Prof. Jocelyn Chanussot
Editor, IEEE Journal of Selected Topics in Applied Earth Observations and Remote Sensing

Comments to the Author

This paper presents a small variation of the method proposed in [16]. This paper is well and clearly written. However, the novelty is not enough and the improvement of the proposed method is very limited. Detail comments are as follows:

The only variation of the proposed method compared with the method in [16] is the band grouping; the next step is the same as [16]. Could you give a theoretical explanation about the band grouping? The only argument mentioned in the paper is 'ordering and locality'. What do you mean by this?

This method involves some 'Trial and Error' operations, such as selection a good threshold for the correlation matrix. This can be improved by some kind of spectral clustering.

In this method, the number of bands after reduction is an important parameter. It is the total number of bands in each group. The performance vs. # bands is compared with other methods. It is not clearly tell how the total number of bands was determined.

Table I is better shown as a figure, rather than a table. Because not easy to see which is better.

PAPER SUMMARY

The paper proposed a supervised band extraction technique over Hyperspectral images. The method consist of two steps: (1) Partition all bands into group of contiguous bands (i.e., ordering and locality properties of hyperspectral data are used), (2) transformation of each group of bands using Maximum Margin Criteria (MMC) (i.e., use of each group to maximize discrimination among classes).

COMMENTS

1. The overall appearance, diction, and language of the manuscript looks has to be improved.
2. The title is not clear. Did you mean that the "Partitioned Maximum Margin" is based on "Transformation for Band Extraction of Hyperspectral Images"?
3. The abstract does not say if the different methods will be compared by using any data set.
4. (Introduction Page 1 Col 1 Line 42) "Basically, a hyperspectral imagery is an image cube where the first two dimensions indicate the size of the image and the third one specifies the band number of the image" This is an obvious concept which does not need any explanation.
5. (Introduction Page 1 Col 2 Line 18) "The large amount of data involved with hyperspectral imagery will, however, dramatically increase processing complexity and time" This sentence appears in between the explanation of the Hughes phenomenon and the redundancy of information present in the hyperspectral images. This statement should be removed or better clarified:
 - a. What are the cases when a hyperspectral imagery increases the processing complexity and time? Which are the analysis that require computational power?
 - b. Is this related with the size of the image (x,y,z) or to the number of classes?
6. (Proposed Methodology Page 3 Col 2 Line 8) "An example of the correlation matrix of Indian data..." There are not any description about the data previously (i.e., the data are described in section III). How the reader can evaluate the examples without knowing anything about the images? The examples should be moved to section III subsection "experimental details"
7. (Experiment and Evaluation Page 4 Col 2 Line 46) "To evaluate the effectiveness of the proposed unsupervised band selection method" Are you proposing an unsupervised band selection method or an unsupervised band extraction method?
8. (Experiment and Evaluation Page 5 Col 1 Lines 6 - 25 - 44) The web links to the data sets should be moved in the reference section
9. (Experiment and Evaluation Page 5 Col 2 Line 12) "In theory, any good classification algorithm can be used" Can you add a reference to any classification algorithm?
10. (Experiment and Evaluation Page 4-5) The description of the three data sets looks too much detailed. The readers can find all the details in the references. This space should be used to add the detailed results (as in the Indian data set case) for the KSC and Botswana data sets.
11. (Analysis and Results Page 6 Col 1 Line 24) "From this table, it is noticed that the proposed method..... used in our experiments" It should be explained why the proposed method does not perform better when the number of bands is lower than 10.

Comments to the Author

1. It looks like baselines which use all bands are missing in the figures.
2. Does higher separability index mean better separation between classes? What kind of separability index was used since lower value meant better separability?
3. Adding standard deviation would be better to evaluate the results in the table 2.
